Aging Is Blockages On All Levels

Dear reader!

This book does not have a table of contents because all the topics are intertwined and separating them out of context i.e. compartmentalising them would disrupt the flow of information. If necessary, you can create your own table of contents while reading, based on what appeals to you in the text, using, for example, sticky notes that can be easily removed later. Since the information is multi-layered, as you work through each layer, the next layer of information will open up, and you may need to edit both the table of contents and notes.

The text runs along an imaginary spiral, repeating itself on its turns and becoming more detailed and deeper with each turn. In order to better understand the information, it is recommended to read it without skipping paragraphs or pages – this helps you immerse yourself in the topics better, or focus.

The following information has a healing effect, because with each reading you abandon programs that are harmful to you.

Happy adventuring!

We live on the soul prison planet Earth, where all activity revolves around soul energy acquiring. We humans have been programmed and continue to be programmed to produce negative energy, which is a dessert for parasites and on which they have become addicted. We have been turned into a giant energy farm. Let us henceforth call the manipulation of the human mind a system of slavery, or the system for short. The main activity of the system is to produce false information and thereby cloud people's minds so that people's sense of reality becomes blurred or disappears and they begin to consider what the system wants as reality. The systematic repetition of false information while simultaneously concealing true information is called the programming of the human mind.

A person is made up of beliefs. The human body is a collection of beliefs which is revived by the person's own soul force – this collection is called convictions. Belief is a psychic energy and therefore the human body is a collection of his psychic energies. Many abnormalities i.e imbalances i.e. health disorders are initially caused by disharmony in a person's psychological i.e. soul states. By focusing on the causes of deviations i.e. the programs, that have been believed without checking if they are based on reality, it is possible to replace or exit these programs, which result in changing or disappearing of deviations.

Where knowledge ended, belief i.e. notknowing began, where the choice remained whether to accept one notknowing or another notknowing. Collective, similar notknowings choices is called religion. A person is going to believe in the type of notknowing, which seems beneficial to him.

This is how the greed program borns, grows and develops. Faith is the hope that what is believed is true, and a person empowers this "truth" with the power of his soul force, makes it alive, giving up a part of his soul space/room to this brought to life "truth". This way, he creates an energetic monster that begins to live an independent life. Sensitive people have the ability to see these monsters and can also communicate with them. These monsters need human energy to survive, and so they are able to jump from one person to another – always to where there is more suitable energy for them. A monster can only jump over and attach itself to a person who has adopted the same program on which the monster was created.

Soul energy consists of two components. One is a program and the other is soul force i.e. soul power, which is connected to the source i.e. the collective power i.e. power potential of the entire soul world. If the program is life-affirming, such as kindness, caring, respect, recognition of oneself and others, or some other life-enhancing belief, and the person empowers it with their soul force, the result is positive energy i.e. life energy. If the program is life-denying, others humiliating, destructive, hateful, combative, accusatory, etc., and if a person empowers this program with their soul force, the result is negative energy, also called death energy. When positive and negative energy collide, both energies are destroyed. For example, when you are full of optimism and a will to act and you meet someone who can disturb you with their negativity then you are going to feel that your life force i.e. positive energy is decreasing and your optimism and will to act disappear.

Getting power from the source is related to a person's psychological states, which in turn is related to inner honesty. The more honest a person is, the better their connection to the source is and the greater the soul force they have at their disposal. Lying to yourself creates negative energy, which means abandoning responsibility. This negativity is in opposition with the positivity of the source, pushing the person away from the source. The more a person lies to himself, the more negative their energy field becomes and the more they are deprived of the right to use the power they receive from the source. If a person lacks power, they cannot create the energy necessary for life, and if they want to continue living, they must draw life force from other people. From that moment on, the person has entered into the status of an energy vampire i.e the status of energy parasite.

The life of an energy vampire (hereinafter I will use the abbreviation vampire) is a constant torment, because the energy received from others contains beliefs that do not coincide with the vampire's own, which creates disharmony in the vampire and he is forced to deal with throwing out the programs/beliefs received from others. Essentially, it is an internal struggle between the soul and the mind, in which most of the energy received is destroyed and the vampire becomes hungry, which forces him to increasingly disturb other people in order to steal another portion of energy.

Vampires are a link between the victim and the dark forces that exist in parallel worlds. These dark creatures feed on human energy. The vampire is used to disturb the victim with his actions, and when the victim starts to fight back, he begins to produce negative energy. Their positive energy, which is their protection, is destroyed, and so the vampire can penetrate the victim's inner world/ soul to make their nest there. The vampire fills himself with energy, but the dark forces in turn feed on the vampire, leaving him with only enough to keep him constantly hungry and he is forced to continue his destructive work. A person who is ready to give up their soul has been previously deceived by dark forces, they have been promised a life of ease, to which they have agreed. Consent means entering into a contract where a person's mind gives part of their soul to the dark forces and in return they receive the "right" to dominate other people. People call such people as the people of power.

Dark beings have no access to people who have not made a contract with them. To obtain the energy of such people, they use a vampire, who is an effective tool. The most effective vampire is a close relative, which can be a father, a mother or a child. A child can have vampire status because they have made a contract with the dark side in one of their previous incarnations. The father or mother may be vampires from either a previous or current incarnation, from the moment a contract is made with the dark side. From the moment a person becomes a vampire, they lose their ability to empathise, their emotional life becomes cold, callous and devoid of energy. The vampire is not interested in the suffering he causes his victim, he is only interested in the energy he obtains from the victim.

Once, a young woman told me about a painful experience she had with her father. She hadn't visited her father in years and decided to visit him. Instead of greeting and hugging her, her father began to curse her blatantly and very obscenely. His daughter felt very sick during this process and almost fainted. After that, the father, who looked almost dead before the scolding, was now filled with his daughter's vitality, and when the daughter asked him why father scolded her, he didn't remember anything about it. In this case, the father had allowed a parasite to live in his soul territory who promised to restore his health. So there were two individuals living in this body – one was the father and the other was the parasite who took over control of the body at the right moment. It really wasn't father scolding, it was the parasite who was using father's body for his own benefit. After emptying the daughter of energy, both the father and the parasite were full of energy. It took daughter two weeks to recover, mostly while sleeping.

Enslavement of a person is achieved through the programming of their mind. Representatives of the dark side who live in parallel spaces/rooms, feed on human energy and whose age reaches thousands of years, are masters of programming.

Enslavement is made possible by a program that directs people to live in a room of reason i.e. puzzle-solving. This is a man's world. Space/Room is an environment surrounded and secured by psychic energies in which belief lives. Every belief has its own personal space/room. With program it has been instilled in people that the world of feelings is some kind of women's thing and cannot be taken seriously. In fact, the central world is the world of feelings, and the world of reason i.e. the world of wisdom is the periphery, the outskirts. Feeling, knowing, recognising the truth is an inner knowledge that is in harmony with the information field of everything that is, which contains the information of all times of everything that is. Women are the intermediaries, the importers of this information. A woman filters out from this information field the information she deems necessary to convey to her husband so that he can create the values she dreams of. The task of the man i.e. mind, is to translate the feelings that the woman conveys to him into local reality i.e. into the language of the Earth, to make them visible. The more precisely a man does this, the more valuable his woman considers him.

Wisdom is a balanced collaboration between soul and mind. We cannot exclude either the soul or the mind, since the former is our gateway to the information fields of everything that is and the latter is the materialisation of the received information i.e. feeling, its translation into local reality and making it visible.

Emotion is a clash i.e. war of two or more opposing beliefs that produces destruction and negative energy that accompanies it. The system has divided/fragmented the Earth's population into different groups and instilled in each group that its truth is supreme and the only correct one. In fact, it is not a truth, but a belief i.e a program that a group of people embrace and bring to life with their soul force. Then the system creates conflict, e.g. by lying that the neighbour is a villain and plans to come and rape the women and kill the men in this group. When the provoked person begins to believe this, belligerent thoughts and accompanying emotions arise, and people begin to arm themselves just in case. The longer one feeds or empowers one's emotions, the more one begins to kill one's neighbour in one's thoughts, the more the created battle axe gains power, and from a certain point on, an armed conflict between neighbours arises, where large amounts of emotions get released, which the representatives of the dark side feed on. In the case of larger conflicts, special ships arrive, equipped with technology to collect and package emotions, e.g. in crystals, plasma spheres, ice, or other energy containers. Emotions are an extremely valuable commodity on the dark side.

A person lives in the space/room of emotions as long as he believes in the program of the enemy's existence. Every slightest difference between one's own truth and another person's truth is interpreted as an attack on their well-being, a threat to their happiness. In the space/room of emotions, beliefs are considered as truths. Through the program, he has been instilled to show his teeth just in case. He doesn't dare to dive from the space/room of emotions into the space/room of feelings, because he has to guard and protect his little happiness all the time. This situation precludes dialogue, where both parties alternately play the role of listener, which provides an opportunity to understand the imagined enemy and free themselves from the illusion of the enemy's existence. A monologue is a situation where there are no listeners, where there is not the slightest desire to understand the other side. What is important is shouting at each other, and violently imposing your truth.

Competition is a prelude to combat. This is a playful test where you can compare your skills with those of your partner and then develop them further. However, if a more skilled partner participating in a competition starts bragging that he is better than you, he triggers emotions that overshadow the joy of the game. The competition has become a combat, a struggle to destroy i.e. to defeat a former partner who is now destined to be an enemy. The program instills that you can defeat others only when you defeat or surpass yourself. This way, a person enters into a combat with themselves and becomes completely negative, which scares away people with a positive energy field, i.e. vibrant people. From this moment on, the self-surpasser i.e. suicider begins to feel lonely, abandoned, and according to the program's precept, a powerless hatred for everyone and everything grows in him. He has spent his soul force on an internal war. An anger potential grows within him, ready to destroy everything in his path. Such a fighter attracts an audience that struggles with a similar thought pattern i.e. program. At large-scale sporting events, there are always energy-gathering vessels that collect emotions – the more turbulent they are, the better. Many people come to sporting events to seek out emotions, which shows that they are in a vampire status. Many people come to sporting events to express their pent-up emotions or internal conflicts.

Football is an event where you express the failures of your material efforts. The system has created a program of consciousness of scarcity i.e. consciousness of poverty that forces people to acquire reserves i.e. wealth. Since most people are victims of this program, there is a competition to see who can acquire more property. Gradually, this turns into a combat, where one group begins to believe that the other group wants to deceive them or get rid of them. Thus begins a bloody fratricidal war, in which people die, but the wealth remains. Such a war creates aversion/reluctance to pursue material wealth. Aversion/Reluctance energy is recorded in a person's feet, which are in the energy field of a person's material progress. When a ball is hit, the ball takes in the aversion/reluctance energy of the hitter, and if someone catches it without the ball hitting the ground (the energy has no chance to ground), the receiver of the ball receives the aversion/reluctance energy contained in the ball, which activates a storm of emotions in him. Naturally, his reluctance also enters the ball when hitting the ball, and the end result is a storm of emotions created by the mixing of all the players emotions. In addition, the aversion/reluctance energy of those who are watching the "game" also enters the ball, which fuels emotions i.e. passions even more. And of course, the show is also going to have energy harvesting ships. Football is a purely material room/level/space game.

Soul room/level/space sports are related to hands, as the hands, located in the soul space/room, are extensions of the soul. These games include basketball, handball, volleyball, tennis, boxing, etc. In such games, when they have turned into combats, people express their own soul traumas, such as insults, inferiority complex, rape, psychological terror, grief and other soul torments. In a combat, one puts one's inner pain into a boxing glove, into a ball or other sports equipment and directs it at his opponent in the hope of relieving his inner torment.

In mental/mind space/level/room games, such as chess, memory games, logic games, debates, arguments, justice, politics, etc., the player has the opportunity to mentally subdue the opponent, as if it gives him the right to command the opponent on every level (or in every space/room/level of existence). In return, he may receive a sobering punch from his opponent, through which the mental harasser gets back the insult with which he harassed his opponent. When a fist hits the face, it does the harasser a favour by shattering their illusions i.e. delusions of their omnipotence/superiority. The face is located in the space/room of illusions.

From the perspective of everything that is, we are all one whole. This knowledge sits deep within us, but unfortunately the system has misused it in a way that forces people to separate themselves from this whole, e.g. with the greed program. When a person embraces it, they are subject to a piece of programming that instills that in order to become rich, a person must create a situation where their giving and receiving are out of balance. This creates internal conflict in the programmable one, as the soul strives for balance and constantly signals with discomfort that you will only find peace when your giving and receiving are in balance. If a person ignores this guidance of his soul, he finds himself at war with himself, where the opponents are the soul and the mind. Fighting is the creation of negative energy, which is what the system wants. A person vitalises a negative energy program, in this case, the greed, with their soul force, gradually depleting their reserves of strength, because by lying to themselves, they are pushed away from the source and their vitality fades. He/She has embraced instillment/program that he can buy everything with a fortune. Unfortunately, soul force is not for sale.

Soul force can be obtained from others through deception, by pre-programming the victims, e.g. by luring, promising, threatening, intimidating, beating, torturing, etc., which is again the creation of negative energy, which is what the system wants. The soul is not programmable, all programs are entered into the human mind and the person chooses which program they activate with their soul force.

Being one with everything means that there are no conflicts, which means a sense of security – a person feels protected. A person who has stepped out of the whole loses this sense of security. Oneness i.e. being one with everything that is, is replaced by solitude i.e. being alone. (In reality, he cannot step out of the whole, but he has embraced a program i.e. a delusion that he has stepped out of the whole – this distorts his psychological state, which creates the basis/platform for the development of phobias.) He begins to look for people with similar views on life to join, in order to alleviate his feelings of loneliness. From this moment, an egregor is born, which support platform consists of program fragments, e.g. together we are stronger, the strength is hidden in unity (to specify, we should say that it is also going to remain hidden there i.e. you cannot use this strength energy), etc. As people have different ideas behind their actions, overall strength of the group doesn't grow – there is no strength to use.

An egregor is a community of people with similar beliefs. This includes, for example, all religious sects (christianity, paganism, islam, judaism, hinduism, etc.), money, education, science, military, various branches of medicine, political parties, the nation-state, etc. A person who begins to challenge/dispute the beliefs prevailing in the egregor will be expelled from it or destroyed. An independent person who has not allowed himself to be torn out of oneness, does not need egregores and their illusory protection, they do not need to rely on others.

A person willingly joins groups, communes, political parties or other egregores because his memory has remained that being one with everything felt good and safe. The difference is that in oneness there are whole i.e. unbroken people, while in egregores there are broken people. The system cannot subjugate oneness, because everything necessary for life is present in it, abundance rules. In order to get a dose of energy, the dark side must separate the individual from the whole, using primarily trauma-based programming, so that person would surround himself with cocoons, which isolate him from the whole.

Unfortunately, an egregor does not resolve a person's internal conflicts – only the person himself can do that. Egregor consists of people who cry on each other's shoulder. Crying is a release from the pain of loss/not having something you want, laughing is a release from the anger of loss/not having something you want – both are emotions. Tears are used to expel one's own anguish i.e. filth of soul, which enters the soul of the comforter on whose shoulder one cries (shoulders are located in the soul space/room). This is how the mixing/evening out pollution within the egregor occurs, where people lose their individuality, turning into a faceless grey mass. For a system, it is easy to manage such a mass, because all people are alike and simple programs are enough to herd them.

It is easy to subjugate a broken person i.e. person with unbalanced soul to a program in which they see other people guilty/as the cause of their misfortune/unhappiness. Those people he considers guilty are his enemies, against whom a war is launched to eradicate evil from the Earth. The primary means of warfare is usually slander i.e. the destruction of a person's reputation.

The backbiter has hope that others will believe him and join his crusade. Exists a program that all people are liars, the only difference is how skilled one or another liar is. Contrary program which says, a person is honest, does not exist. Those people, who are subjugated to a program which claims that all people are liars, believe the backbiter's revelation of "the truth" and for a moment, feel exalted/euphoria, that they are not as noble as they seem. Humiliating others creates the illusion of self-exaltation. At the same time, the backbiter does the one who he backtalkes, a favour, because the person who believed the lie they heard from backbiter, will distance himself from the one who is backtalked, as he is no longer a threat to him in their confrontation (honesty versus lies), and they can let go of their opponent and move away from them. This way, the person being backtalked gets rid of those who think badly of him and has more time and energy to do their own thing, to live their own life. However, the backbiter, by his actions, further increases his existing guilt, which results in a continued decline in his vitality.

Reminding people of their unity with oneness when they are in conflict creates an instant sense of calm and feeling of camaraderie. For example, if you are speeding and the police stop you for it, it is enough to just say in your mind that you and I are one. This must be said to both police officers separately. Then watch with excitement to see if and how he punishes himself. The police's punitive or arrogant tone disappears in an instant, and they try to avoid punishment or minimise it as much as possible. At the same time, to justify his existence, he will lecture you about discipline, rules, and other vital matters, which you should listen to with interest. Unfortunately, some police officers are psychopaths who have been away from unity with oneness for a very long time and can't remember it. Establishing soul contact with them may fail.

The system produces psychopaths i.e. people with broken soul life. To accomplish this, a person is tortured for at least six incarnations in a row – e.g., having their loved one raped in front of them, having their children killed or tortured, physical mutilation, having their home burned down, etc. Every time the victim's psyche is violated, they close themselves off in a self-created protective shell or cocoon in order not to feel the pain of their soul, to numb it. A matryoshka-like system of cocoons is formed, when you open a layer of a cocoon, you'll find the next cocoon hidden within it. There can be hundreds if not thousands of such cocoons i.e. protective shells – in the innermost, original cocoon, you are going to find the human soul, whose voice cannot be heard through many layers of protection. Communication with the soul is blocked. Along with this, qualities of the soul such as compassion, warmth of soul, tenderness, caring, expansivity, openness, joy of life, and other positive qualities are also blocked. People who have gone through such a gallows and have become "soulless monsters" are thrust into power by the system in order to cause as much suffering, misery, anguish, hopelessness, thoughts of death, etc. to the people as possible, so that they produce as much negative energy as possible. The system ensures that misery is global.

The ego is a program for compensating for and hiding inferiority. The greater the inferiority i.e. the lower the self-esteem, the bigger the ego, that balances it, must be. An egomaniac grows out of extreme inferiority. Subordinating the ego to one's own control or hiding it is not going to work because the causes of inferiority are not addressed i.e. deciphering/decrypting/thinking out and getting rid of the programs that humiliate a person, are not addressed. A person remains convinced of their inferiority as a result of trauma-based programming which has lasted/continued throughout many incarnations. From this grows out "knowledge" that he is inferior, unworthy, a misfortune to himself and others. Self-humiliation creates continuous soul-torture and self-blame, during which a person produces an insane amount of negative energy that pleases the system. You can get rid of an inferiority complex the moment you realise that it is not your inherent part, but is caused by long-term programming by the system, when you understand that it is a delusion, an illusion.

The sign of being a slave is when you have swallowed a program which states that you have no right to your own free time – you have to do something all the time. If you refuse to do something, you will experience internal tension i.e. defensive reaction i.e. the fear of getting whipped by the enslaver for loitering/dawdling around. Herein lies one of the reasons for smoking – it is a substitute activity that hides inactivity or resting. A substitute activity for allowing yourself rest can also be alcoholism, drug use, being "sick" or other activity. which is like the guise of a smokescreen that allows you to steal away the free time that is forbidden to a slave. If being a slave, experienced over many incarnations, has been imperceptibly accepted and has become an inherent part of a person, you can only free yourself from it by becoming aware of, and seeing through the programming of being a slave. As a result of becoming aware of this, the need for smoking or some other substitute activity may also disappear. Your work will take on a new dimension – you will no longer work because someone is forcing you to, but to see the excellent result of your work – your creation. You have exited from being a slave.

A woman is the soul of the couples space/room of togetherness, through whom flows the soul force that animates this union, which is expansive and uplifting. When a woman empowers her dreams with the soul force flowing through her, the result is growth energy, which is irreplaceable for life's progress i.e. growth. This energy is given to the man, whose task is to materialise the woman's dreams – the work is out of the client's material. Growth energy radiates from woman's breasts. As the growth energy flows from a woman to a man, the woman becomes magnetising/ attractive to other men, which may result in some of them falling in love with her.

The system has programmed people to believe that the energy of growth is love, while leaving this concept undefined. Thus, this concept is used according to one's beliefs in a way that seems beneficial to one. Different beliefs about love create conflict i.e. war for the growth energy, which is extremely beneficial to the system. People believe the program that all is fair in love and war. Love is equated with war on the level of the senses, it is an illusion of freedom. When a person says they love you, they are actually saying I love to feed on you. In order to nourish yourself, you must be rooted in the one you desire. In the case of mutual love, there is mutual rooting. When one of the lovers dies, ones roots are removed and the feeling of hunger, deprivation i.e. grief follows. And the crying, along with the production of negative energy, will continue for longer.

Women are the ones who start wars. Since a woman has access to the information field of everything that is, she sees/feels the latest cool situations, creations, freedoms, etc. She compares them to her own achievements within the family, and if they are too poor compared to what could be, she becomes dissatisfied. She tries to pass on to her husband the examples she sees, and when he does not accept them, she uses coercion, which manifests itself as psychological violence. This coercion may manifest as whining or being silent, where there is an image but no sound, with the soft and pleasant tone of voice changing to a shrill, soul-searing tone, and at the same time the warmth of the soul also disappears from the spectrum of her voice. At the same time, if a man surrenders, he loses his dignity in the eyes of a woman – he is no longer a manly man to her and the woman starts to treat him like a rag.

The creator of room is a man, for which he uses the surrounding of emptiness. A woman fills the room created by a man with her soul energy (soul force + woman's dreams about the subject), and it becomes a home where she feels safe. The boundaries created by a man protect a woman from excessive chaos and disorganisation/dispersion. When home becomes too small/cramped, it is the man's job to increase the room i.e. push the boundaries. If a man does not set boundaries for his woman's activities, she will not feel safe and is going to start provoking him to set those boundaries. She can whine until the man has had enough and shouts, "Enough!". Such a clamor is forcible imposition of boundaries, and for a while there will be peace in the house.

Stability and determination are masculine energies, while chaos and hesitation are feminine energies. If a man is not willing to push the boundaries i.e. create a larger space/room for his wife to accommodate her impressions, the home becomes a prison – the woman says she has no room to breathe. From this moment on, alcoholic beverages may be used, which create the illusion of the disappearance of boundaries, of freedom. When you sober up, when the illusions disappear, you feel even more imprisoned, because the time that should have been spent on organising your boundaries was spent on being drunk, more impressions came and the space/room became even more cramped. Alcohol is a drug. All drugs create the illusion of a state without boundaries i.e. freedom, and are therefore a means of escape from local reality.

In addition to physical drugs, there are also energetic drugs, such as euphoria, which is intended by the system as a substitute for joy. Joy is a state where you are filled with positive energy and it overflows. This is forbidden to a person by the system because it is too positive and is capable of overriding/cancelling the system's programming – the system considers it dangerous to its own existence and organises some kind of accident that turns the situation that creates joy into a negative one. This has created "knowledge" that rejoicing ends with an accident/unhappiness.

As an example of organising an accident, I will describe how a wild animal is led in front of a car (animals have very sensitive senses and would not get into traffic accidents if they were not manipulated). For this, technology is used where the animal is surrounded with an energetic tunnel, which causes it to have tunnel vision so that it could not see the surrounding background. An animal is going to be hit with radio waves to make it run in this tunnel. The running pace is determined by the intensity of the radio waves. The animal and the car are on the operator's computer screen and the computer program calculates how fast it should have to run to get in front of the moving car. The operator holds the end of the tunnel, from which the animal runs out, in front of the car, giving the impression that the tunnel is moving along with the car – thus creating an accident, the severity of which is determined by the operator.

Similarly, it is possible to create a collision with a car traveling in the opposite direction, where the operator takes over control of one or both cars by hacking into the driver's consciousness. It is possible to hide/make the car invisible, which means you have to repeatedly check for other cars when performing a maneuver. I have had their various technologies demonstrated to and on me repeatedly. For example, the number four on my computer screen changes to number two at the time I look at it. It's possible that this is being done to scare me into giving up on exploring reality.

At the same time, I also have many positive experiences with beings operating in parallel spaces/rooms who have fantastical technologies at their disposal. For example, I once drove from Haapsalu to Tallinn, with three women sitting in the back seat of a car. We were accompanied the entire way by a small ship about four meters long with two pilots. The women interacted with the pilots and their mood became increasingly cheerful. I didn't get to interact much with the pilots myself because I had to keep my attention on driving the car. A few weeks later I noticed that the car's two clocks, one on-board clock and the other radio-controlled clock, both showed the same time. It used to be that one clock would go ten minutes forward and the other ten minutes behind over the course of a month. I contacted the pilots and learned that they fixed the watches during the car drive. I thanked them and they commented that it wasn't worth mentioning, it was an easy task for them. I asked if they could explain to me how they did it. They explained that they were using so-called hollow beam i.e. tunnel technology to get into something (in this case, into clocks). One end of the beam is attached to the part of the room where something needs to be done. Through the tunnel, they can move from their ship to any point in room, along with their tools. They explained that our clocks use quartz which are inaccurate in size. In one clock they evaporated the quartz to make it smaller, and in the other clock they grew it larger.

Euphoria i.e. intoxication of victory, is a situation where the negative energy within the winner overflows, where they feel loss of limitations. He gets the illusion of being free from his soul torment, which lasts until the excess steam is released. The agony of the soul begins when you destroy your opponent in your thoughts. People don’t know that thought is action. These torments are signals and reminders of soul that we are all one whole and to destroy another person in your thoughts is, first and foremost, to destroy yourself. The system tries to program us so that any playfulness, which is a powerful production of positive energy, will first turn into competition and then into combat i.e. killing. Competition can be a competition as long as you measure yourself to someone else. When measuring is replaced by comparison i.e. evaluation, of who is better and who is worse, a confrontation arises, which is a protest against labelling. Why is evaluation system used in schools?

Where there is evaluation, there arises anger. Anger is a negatively charged, concentrated energy created by the one bullied, which the soul tames in the hope that the bully will realise their mistakes and stop subjugating, torturing and other life-destroying activities. When anger is contained/squeezed into oneself beyond a critical limit and the soul can no longer hold it in or gives up hope that the bully will stop their actions, it can explode and wipe out the entire system of slavery with its destructive force. However, the system has programmed people to see other people as the guilty one instead of the system. This way, people direct their anger to the wrong place and the system continues to thrive.

Revenge is the soul's quest for balance, which stops violence. It is forbidden by system with the program which instills that revenge increases violence and crime. If the criminal realised that revenge towards him is inevitable, that people would not deny themselves it, he would no longer dare to harm anyone, which would result in ending the production of negative energy – the system would starve and die off. People empathise with the avenger i.e. hero in revenge movies because in their souls they know that this is standing up for their own freedom. If no one stops the perpetrator, he will develop a feeling of impunity and his desire for violence is going to grow. He feels his power growing, and through the application of this power, euphoria flows into him – he has become addicted to an energetic drug rush. This addiction drives him to commit even greater violence in order to get an even greater energetic drug rush.

A state is a tool of the slavery system, an extension of it. This is a mafia structure protected by state legislation, which ensures that its population i.e. the subjects of the state, live on the verge of subsistence, that there is constant struggle for survival. This is how negativity is produced on a large scale and the number of energy parasites continues to grow. State legislations are null and void from the start. Being one with everyone means that all its members are equal, which creates the prerequisite for peaceful coexistence. This means that no one has the right to write laws over another being and impose them on others through power structures. It's like me writing my demands on a piece of paper and forcing my neighbour to fulfil them, otherwise I'll call my gang over to establish an order. In terms of idea, legislation is a collective contract, confirmed by the signatures of both parties to the contract. Since the legislation has not been signed by citizens, it is null and void. As long as a person believes that legislation works in their favour, they will empower it, which means that they are strangling themselves, and they have paid all the mafia taxes (VAT, income tax, CO2 tax, green energy tax, fuel excise tax, etc.) when they bought the strangling rope. If people stopped feeding the criminal system with their soul force, it would collapse overnight.
